University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia

Four-year public university for men and women. Undergraduates: 5,400 men, 1,100 women. Graduates: 2,100 men, 1,060 women. Calendar: Semester, summer session. Location: Small city 110 miles southwest of Washington, D.C. and 70 miles northwest of Richmond, Virginia. Special features: Since its founding in 1819, the University of Virginia has borne the impress of its creator Thomas Jefferson, who planned its early curriculum as well as its grounds and original buildings. The university today, as Jefferson wished it to be, is not only the state university but also a national institution, which draws students from all over the nation. University grounds occupy more than 1,500 acres.

CURRICULUM. Undergraduate degrees offered: Bachelor. Fields of study: Architecture (city planning, landscape architecture), art (art history), biological sciences (bacteriology, biochemistry, biology, botany, ecology, marine biology, physiology, zoology), business and commerce (accounting, advertising, business management and administration, finance, marketing), computer science and systems analysis (computer science), education (child development and nursery, education of exceptional children, education of the deaf, education of the mentally retarded, elementary, general, secondary, speech and hearing), engineering (aerospace and aeronautical, chemical, civil, electrical, engineering sciences, materials science, mechanical engineering, nuclear technology), English and literature (creative writing, English, literature, speech), ethnic studies (American Indian or native American, black or Afro-American), foreign languages (Classical languages, Eastern languages, French, German, Italian, linguistics, Russian, Spanish), history and cultures (American, ancient, area and regional, European), mathematics (statistics), music (composition and theory, music history), philosophy and religion (philosophy, religion, theology), physical sciences (astronomy, chemistry, environmental sciences, meteorology, oceanography, physics), psychology (child, experimental, social), social sciences (anthropology, economics, foreign service, international relations, political science, social work, sociology), theater arts (drama). Special programs: Accelerated program, honors program, independent study, Echols Scholar Program (invitational—exempts a student from all course requirements, a program of study is designed for an individual's interests and abilities). Programs for students from minorities or low-income families: Special counselor, pre-admission summer program. Military training: Air Force ROTC, Army ROTC, Navy ROTC. Required freshman courses: Foreign language, mathematics or science. Tests used for counseling, placement, or credit: Placement, credit, or both will generally be given for grades of 3 and higher in Advanced Placement Examinations. Maximum of 30 semester hours of credit by examination may be counted toward degree. Academic regulations: Satisfactory progress consists of a minimum of 14 semester hours and 30 grade points for each semester of residence. When the grade-point deficiency exceeds 12 a student is placed on probation; a deficiency of minus 24 results in suspension. 97% of first-year students complete year in good academic standing. Graduate programs: Architecture, biological sciences, business and commerce, city planning, computer science and systems analysis, education, engineering, English and journalism, fine and applied arts, foreign language and literature, health professions, law, mathematics, philosophy, physical sciences, psychology, religion, social sciences.

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 5,701 men applied, 3,048 were accepted; 2,232 women applied, 701 were accepted. Admissions requirements: SAT by January. ACH by January. English Composition Test, a mathematics test (Level I or II), and a third ACH of the candidate's choice (neither mathematics nor English). Applicants to the College of Arts and Sciences are strongly urged to take a foreign language ACH, and applicants to the School of Engineering and Applied Science are urged to take the third test in a natural science. High school English 4 units, social studies 1, foreign language 2, mathematics 3, science 1, electives to total at least 16 units. Applicants to the School of Engineering and Applied Science must present at least 3½ units in mathematics and 2 units in science. Interview recommended. Basis for selection: Of all criteria, those of good character and academic achievement and promise are paramount. In order of their importance, the specific criteria of selection are: secondary school record (including subjects studied, grades, rank in class), secondary school's recommendation, test scores, and extracurricular activities and interests. Preference given to Virginia residents and alumni sons and daughters. Middle 50% of applicants accepted for admission had SAT-verbal scores between 580 and 600 and SAT-mathematical scores between 600 and 630. Application fee: $15, may be waived for applicants with financial need. Application procedures: Closing date for applications February 1, applicants notified of decisions from mid-March to mid-April, accepted applicants must reply by May 1. CRDA. EDP-S. Transfer applicants: About 1,600 apply annually, and 500 are accepted. Apply by February 1 for fall term. Other requirements and procedures: Normally a B average is required in a course program comparable to the one a student desires to enter. SAT scores and high school transcript required.

STUDENT LIFE. Freshman class: 1,650 men, 500 women. 62% from Virginia, 99% live on campus, 1% commute, 4% from minority backgrounds. Middle 50% of enrolled freshmen have SAT-verbal scores between 590 and 610 and SAT-mathematical scores between 600 and 630. 74% of the freshman class graduated in the top fifth; 93% ranked in the top two-fifths. The mean SAT-verbal score was 596 and the mean SAT-mathematical score was 623. Programs undergraduates choose: Liberal arts 70%, engineering 15%, education 2%, business 3%, architecture 5%, nursing 5%. Postgraduate studies: 71% of graduates enter graduate or professional programs. Student activities: Student government (relatively strong system; student members on most faculty committees), student newspaper, magazine, yearbook, radio, religious organizations (Catholic, Jewish, Protestant, Orthodox), drama, symphony orchestra, pep band, concert band, glee club, political organizations, Black Student Alliance, social service organizations, 33 national fraternities. Athletics: Archery, baseball-M, basketball, bowling, cross-country-M, fencing, field hockey-W, football-M, golf, gymnastics, handball, lacrosse-M, rifle-M, rowing (crew)-M, rugby-M, sailing, skiing, soccer-M, softball, squash, swimming and diving, tennis, track and field, wrestling-M. Student services: Counseling, health services, student employment service for undergraduates, placement service for graduates and alumni. Regulations: All first-year students must live in university residence halls during their initial year of attendance. Students after the first semester of their first year are eligible to operate motor vehicles as long as they remain in good academic and social standing. Additional information: The university's honor system, student controlled and administered since 1842, provides the basis for a responsible system of student self-government. The essence of the system is that a student's word as a member of the community can be accepted without question as truth, and that any violation of a student's word is an offense against the entire student body.

ANNUAL EXPENSES. Tuition and fees: $542; out-of-state students $1,217. Room and board: $1,000. Other expenses: $450.

Virginia Wesleyan College, Norfolk, Virginia

Four-year Methodist liberal arts college for men and women. Undergraduates: 336 men, 290 women. Calendar: Semester, summer session. Location: Suburban community. Special features: The academic village concept is patterned closely after Thomas Jefferson's adaptation of the Oxford and Cambridge plans. This approach fosters close relationships among members of the college community as students live and learn together in small, compact, self-contained villages.

CURRICULUM. Undergraduate degrees offered: Bachelor. Fields of study: Art (studio art), biological sciences, education (elementary, secondary), English and literature (English, literature), foreign languages (French, Spanish), history and cultures (American, European), mathematics, philosophy and religion (philosophy, religion), physical sciences (chemistry), psychology (general), social sciences (police science, social work, sociology). Special programs: Independent study, study abroad (University of Graz). Programs for students from minorities or low-income families: Reduced course load. Required freshman courses: English composition, science or mathematics, philosophy or religion. Tests used for counseling, placement, or credit: Placement, credit, or both will generally be given for grades of 3 and higher in Advanced Placement Examinations. Academic regulations: After 1 year, freshmen must have a 1.6 cumulative point average (4-point system). 85% of freshmen are eligible to continue. Additional information: Recognizing that students have different academic backgrounds, interests, and needs, the college has few requirements for all students. Rather, the college believes that the student and his adviser should be free to develop an individualized academic program. Therefore, only the following course and area requirements apply to all students: freshman English 6 credits, philosophy or religion 6 credits, science or mathematics 6 credits.

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 385 men applied, 245 were accepted; 316 women applied, 260 were accepted. Admissions requirements: SAT by April, senior year. High school English 4 units, social studies 2, foreign language 1, mathematics 1, science 1. Interview recommended. Basis for selection: The committee on admission considers each applicant on an individual basis. After careful study of all the available information, it evaluates the student's background and determines his potentials for the success at the college. The student's secondary school record, the secondary school recommendation, extracurricular activities and interests, and test scores all form a part of the committee's consideration. Middle 50% of applicants accepted for admission had SAT-verbal scores between 405 and 520 and SAT-mathematical scores between 400 and 510. Application fee: $10, may be waived for applicants with financial need. CURRICULUM. Undergraduate degrees offered: Bachelor. Fields of study: Art, biological sciences, business and commerce, communications, engineering, English and literature, foreign languages (Classical languages, French, German, Italian, Russian, Spanish), history and cultures, mathematics, military science, music, philosophy and religion, physical sciences (chemistry, geology, physics), psychology, social sciences (anthropology, economics, political science, sociology), theater arts. Special programs: Honors program, independent study, study abroad (junior year or during 6-week term), 3-2 liberal arts and engineering combination, 3-3 liberal arts and law combination, exchange program with 7 other area liberal arts colleges, undergraduate research grant program. Military training: Army ROTC. Required freshman courses: Physical education. Minimum of 6 credits (generally 2 courses) in languages (English, foreign, or Classical), humanities, mathematics and sciences, and social sciences required for graduation, but no specific courses required of all students. Tests used for counseling, placement, or credit: Placement, credit, or both will sometimes be given on basis of Advanced Placement Examinations. College's placement tests administered to entering freshmen in mathematics, German, Spanish, French, and chemistry. Academic regulations: A freshman must attain a 1.50 (on a 4.00 scale) cumulative grade-point average for year to continue in good academic standing. Approximately 5% of freshmen fail to meet this requirement. Graduate programs: Law. Additional information: Undergraduate teaching college dedicated to maintaining a distinguished teaching faculty. Student-faculty ratio 11 to 1. Over 75% of classes are of 25 or fewer students.

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 1,260 men applied, 840 were accepted. Admissions requirements: SAT by January, senior year. English Composition Test and 2 other ACH by January, senior year. ACH used for admission decision, not for placement. High school English 4 units, foreign language 2, mathematics 3, science 1 (excluding general science), history 1. A total of 16 units in preparatory subjects required; 14 must be in English, foreign language, mathematics, history, social science, and natural science. Basis for selection: School achievement record (reflected in class rank and nature of subjects taken) is most important, followed closely by test scores and recommendations. Special consideration given to sons of alumni and to applicants from minorities and low-income families. Middle 50% of applicants accepted for admission had SAT-verbal scores between 523 and 627 and SAT-mathematical scores between 567 and 663. Application fee: $10, may be waived for applicants with financial need. Application procedures: Closing date for applications February 15, applicants notified of decisions in late March, accepted applicants must reply May 1. CRDA, EDP-S. Transfer applicants: About 50 apply annually, and 25 are accepted. Apply by August 1 for fall term. Other requirements and procedures: same test requirements as for freshmen; also same secondary school units required. Credit given for courses comparable to courses offered by Washington and Lee and in which grade of C attained.

STUDENT LIFE. Freshman class: 350 men, 20% from Virginia, 97% live on campus, 3% commute, 3% from minority backgrounds. Middle 50% of enrolled freshmen have SAT-verbal scores between 525 and 630 and SAT-mathematical scores between 570 and 660. Programs undergraduates choose: Business 12%, history 20%, English 8%, politics 8%, natural sciences 18%, sociology 6%, economics 6%, foreign languages 6%. Postgraduate studies: 65% of graduates enter graduate or professional programs. Student activities: Student government (Student Body Executive Committee, University Council made up of students and faculty, various standing committees), student newspaper, literary magazine, yearbook, FM radio, drama, brass choir, glee club, Young Democrats, Young Republicans, Young Americans for Freedom, Student Association for Black Unity, social service organizations (ecology club, tutoring elementary and secondary students), fraternities. Athletics: Baseball, basketball, bowling, cross-country, football, golf, handball, lacrosse, rifle, rugby, soccer, softball, squash, swimming and diving, tennis, track and field, wrestling. Student services: Counseling, health services, placement service for graduates and alumni. Regulations: Freshmen may operate automobiles. Freshmen required to live in university dormitories and take meals in dining hall; no restrictions as to living accommodations or meals after freshman year. Additional information: Students are given large measure of freedom in governing their own affairs and are represented by active membership on faculty committees. A student committee is responsible for student disciplinary matters. The Honor System, probably the most enduring and distinctive feature of student life, is administered entirely by elected student officials. The concept of honor governs a student's academic and personal life. There are 5 women's colleges in the general area. Approximately 55% of the students are affiliated with the 15 national social fraternities represented on the campus.

ANNUAL EXPENSES. Tuition and fees: $2,300. Room and board: Approximately $950. Other expenses: $500.

FINANCIAL AID. Aid offered: Grants, loans, NDSL, EOG, CWSP. 153 accepted freshman applicants were judged to have need, 125 of these were offered aid, 125 were offered the full amounts they were estimated to need. Basis for selection: Financial aid awarded exclusively on need basis and in full amount of need. Academic qualifications considered in determining type of aid offered. Application procedures: Closing date for applications February 1, applicants notified of decisions late March or early April, recipients of aid offers must reply May 1. PCS required. Transfer students: Requirements and procedures for transfer students applying for financial aid are same as for freshmen except only graduates of 2-year colleges are eligible for financial aid for first term.

Maximum number of semester hours of credit by examination that may be counted toward degree is variable and must be approved by registrar. Washington Pre-College Test used for counseling, placement, or credit. Academic regulations: A student is placed on academic probation if either his cumulative grade-point average or his grade-point average for the quarter just completed falls below 2.0. Approximately 75%-80% of freshmen complete year in good academic standing. Graduate programs: Administration, art, biological sciences, business and commerce, chemistry, distributive education, education, educational media, English, family studies, health, history, home economics, junior high broad area, library science, master teacher, mathematics, music, physical education, psychology, reading specialist, science, school counseling, social sciences, special education, speech and drama, speech pathology and audiology, supervision and curriculum, technology and industrial education.

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 1,623 men applied, 562 were accepted; 2,054 women applied, 794 were accepted. Admissions requirements: Washington Pre-College Test before college registration (used for placement, not to determine eligibility for admission). No specific high school units required. High school graduation with 2.5 accumulated school grade average required. Students with school grade averages between 2.0 and 2.5 may be admitted subject to admissions decision after eighth high school semester and available facilities and staff. Basis for selection: College admits applicants whose total available evidence (academic record, test results, recommendations, interviews) indicates a reasonable probability of success. The number of new students admitted for any one quarter depends on the availability of facilities and staff. Application fee: None. Application procedures: Closing dates for applications December 1 and June 1, applicants notified of decisions after completion of admissions process. Transfer applicants: About 2,200 apply annually, and 1,200 are accepted. Apply by previous quarter. Other requirements and procedures: 2.0 cumulative grade-point average with at least 2.0 last quarter. May transfer any course numbered 100 and above to a maximum of 90 quarter credits.

STUDENT LIFE. Freshman class: 600 men, 700 women. 90% from Washington, 100% live on campus (freshmen are required to live on campus, although probably less than 100% actually do), 5%-10% from minority backgrounds. Programs undergraduates choose: Liberal arts 50%, education 33%, business 7%, home economics 1%, fine arts .5%. Student activities: Student government (Associated Students of Central), student newspaper, yearbook, radio, outside entertainment groups, Bahai Association, Canterbury Club, Chi Altha Christian Club, Intervarsity Christian Fellowship, Student Association of the Church of Jesus Christ of L.D.S., drama, dance, marching band, concert band, Young Democrats, Young Republicans, Political Science Association, Black Students of Central, Minority Whites of Central, Native American Club, MECHA (Chicano), social service organizations (SPURS, student wives). Athletics: Baseball-M, basketball, bowling, cross-country, field hockey-W, football-M, golf, gymnastics, handball-M, lacrosse-W, soccer-M, softball-W, swimming and diving, tennis, track and field, water polo-M, wrestling-M. Student services: Counseling, health services, student employment service for undergraduates, placement service for graduates and alumni. Regulations: All single freshmen and sophomores under 21 years of age must live in a college residence hall except those living with their parents in the Ellensburg area.

ANNUAL EXPENSES. Tuition and fees: $447; out-of-state students $1,359. Room and board: $890-$965 (depending on living option chosen). Other expenses: $180. Optional insurance: $44 per year, not included in $180.

FINANCIAL AID. Aid offered: Grants, loans, jobs, tuition and fee waivers. NDSL, EOG, CWSP, Law Enforcement Education Program. 375 accepted freshman applicants were judged to have need, all of these were offered the full amounts they were estimated to need. Basis for selection: Financial need is the main criterion on which aid is based for all students. Out-of-state students pay a higher tuition and fee cost, all other expenses are the same. Minorities and poverty-level students are awarded financial aid on the basis of need as are all students. Application procedures: Closing date for applications April 1, applicants notified of decisions by June 15, recipients of aid offers must reply July 1. PCS or SFS required. Transfer students: Transfer students are required to complete a confidential statement and a college financial aid application. This is the same application procedure as for freshman students. Additional information: The office of financial aid attempts to help students locate employment both on and off campus. Through employment, students are able to reduce the size of college loans.

CURRICULUM. Undergraduate degrees offered: Associate. Fields of study: Agriculture (animal science, horticulture), art (art history, design, graphic arts, photography, printing), biological sciences (biology, botany, ecology, physiology, zoology), business and commerce (accounting, advertising, business management and administration, marketing, sales and retailing, secretarial studies), communications (journalism), computer science and systems analysis (data processing), education (art, child development and nursery, elementary, general, industrial arts, music, physical, vocational trade and industrial), engineering (civil engineering, drafting, electrical engineering, engineering aide, engineering design, mechanical engineering, metallurgical engineering, quality control technology, surveying), English and literature (English, literature, speech), ethnic studies (black or Afro-American), foreign languages (French, German, Spanish), geography, health and medical professions (dental hygiene, nursing–practical, nursing–registered), history and cultures (American), home economics (infant and child care), mathematics, music (composition and theory, instrumental music, voice), philosophy and religion (philosophy), physical sciences (chemistry, geology, physical sciences, physics), psychology (general), social sciences (anthropology, economics, police science, political science, sociology), theater arts (theater arts) trade and vocational (automotive maintenance, auto rebuilding, commercial foods, diesel mechanics, electronic technology, machine shop, welding technology). Special programs: Cooperative education, independent study. Programs for students from minorities or low-income families: Remedial instruction, reduced course load. Required freshman courses: English composition, history or social studies, mathematics, physical education, science. Academic regulations: Freshmen remain in good standing unless their cumulative grade-point average drops below 1.75 (on a 4.0 scale).

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 1,596. Admissions requirements: Admissions test not required. College recommends that incoming freshmen take the college placement examination for placement in mathematics and English. College accepts for enrollment anyone who is at least 18 years of age or who is a graduate of an accredited high school. Some added requirements for applicants in nursing and dental hygiene. Basis for selection: The college will accept a limited number of foreign students (approximately 1% of the full-time student body). Application procedures: No closing date for applications, applicants notified of decisions as soon as application is complete. Transfer applicants: About 124 are accepted annually. Full-time student transferring from another collegiate institution must submit application for admission and official transcript of college or university records. Credit will be evaluated by college official.

STUDENT LIFE. Freshman class: 709 men, 656 women. 95% from Washington, 100% commute, less than 1% from minority backgrounds. Programs undergraduates choose: Liberal arts 40%, engineering 7%, education 8%, business 10%, agriculture 1%, home economics 1%, fine arts 3%, technologies 20-25%. Postgraduate studies: 9% of graduates enter 4-year programs. Student activities: Student government, student newspaper, directory, drama, dance, concert band, ethnic organizations. Athletics: Baseball-M, basketball, cross-country-M, fencing, field hockey-W, golf-M, softball-M, tennis, track and field-M. Student services: Counseling, health services, student employment service for undergraduates, placement service for graduates and alumni.

ANNUAL EXPENSES. Tuition and fees: $249, out-of-state students $681. Room and board: $900. Other expenses: $120.

FINANCIAL AID. Aid offered: Grants, loans, jobs. Tuition waivers based on income and need analysis. NDSL, EOG, CWSP, Nursing Scholarships, Law Enforcement Education Program, vocational work-study. 50 accepted freshman applicants were judged to have need, 50 of these were offered aid. Basis for selection: Most direct assistance is based on proven financial need. Need is defined as the difference between what a student and his parents in a given economic situation can be expected to contribute toward the cost of attending college, and the actual cost of attending college. Consideration is made for the difference in college costs between in-state and out-of-state students, as well as in-community and out-of-community students. The college expects the student to adhere to a modest budget. Financial aid is open only to full-time students carrying at least 12 credit hours per quarter. Students are requested to maintain good academic standing. Application procedures: Applications made after July 1 are considered only if additional funds are available during July. Recipients of aid offers must reply within 2 weeks of notification. PCS required. Transfer students: Institutional jobs are available without a demonstration of need. If a student cannot meet the requirements for financial assistance, the financial aid and placement office will assist him in seeking off-campus employment.

Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, West Virginia

Four-year Presbyterian liberal arts college for men and women. Undergraduates: 481 men, 334 women. Calendar: Modified 4-1-4 (in weeks, 12-4-12-4), summer session. Location: Large town 125 miles from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Special features: Ideally located adjacent to northern section of Monongahela National Forest which is rapidly developing into a major outdoor recreational center for the Middle Atlantic states.

CURRICULUM. Undergraduate degrees offered: Associate, bachelor. College offers 3 programs: diversified (somewhat prestructured liberal arts core requirements, with considerable flexibility, many course options); integrated (problem and issue-oriented, emphasis on innovative teaching); contract (student arranges his own program through consultation with 3 faculty sponsors). All 3 programs include significant emphasis on independent study, off-campus study–work experiences, varied pacing of studies. Fields of study: Art, biological sciences (biology, botany, ecology, zoology), business and commerce (accounting, business management and administration, finance, marketing, secretarial studies), communications (journalism), education (business, child development and nursery, elementary, physical, secondary), English and literature (speech), foreign languages (French, German, Spanish), health and medical professions (medical technology), history and cultures, library science, mathematics, military science (air science), music (instrumental music–piano and organ, voice), philosophy and religion (philosophy, religion), physical sciences (chemistry, earth science, physics), psychology, social sciences (economics, political science, social work, sociology), theater arts (drama). Special programs: Independent study, study abroad (college-operated programs in England, Belgium, Spain, Germany-Austria), 3-2 liberal arts and engineering combination, 3-2 forestry and liberal arts combination. Programs for students from minorities or low-income families: Tutoring, reduced course load. Military training: Air Force ROTC (2-year only). Required freshman courses: A single freshman core course required of all freshmen. Tests used for counseling, placement, or credit: Placement, credit, or both will generally be given for grades of 3 and higher in Advanced Placement Examinations. Credit will generally be given on basis of CLEP Subject Examinations. Academic regulations: In typical year 90% of freshmen finish in good standing. In 1972-73 traditional letter grades were to be replaced by high pass/pass/no credit evaluation. Additional information: One-year certificate program available.

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 452 men applied, 386 were accepted; 246 women applied, 235 were accepted. Admissions requirements: SAT by January, senior year. (ACT is an acceptable substitute for candidates seeking admission from secondary schools in West Virginia.) High school English 4 units, social studies 2, foreign language 2, mathematics 2, science 2. These are preferred units, shortages in one area may be offset by special strength in another. Interview recommended. Basis for selection: School achievement and program most important, followed by references, extracurricular record, special talents and interests away from school. Test scores are not a primary consideration. College attempts to identify candidates with potential for academic and personal growth in Davis and Elkins community. Application fee: $15, may be waived for applicants with financial need. Application procedures: No closing date for applications, applicants notified of decisions as files are completed and action is taken (rolling admissions), accepted applicants must reply May 1. CRDA. Transfer applicants: About 60 apply annually, and 45 are accepted. Apply by August 1 for fall term. Other requirements and procedures: evaluation based on college record only; high school record necessary only to complete permanent record. A 2.0 average on scale of 4.0 = A is the standard for transfer admission. Credits with D grades may be accepted in transfer.

STUDENT LIFE. Freshman class: 170 men, 125 women. 20% from West Virginia, 90% live on campus, 6% commute, 4% from minority backgrounds. The freshman class includes individuals with records of high school achievements ranging from average to outstanding, and others with undeveloped academic potential which the college hopes to nurture. Programs undergraduates choose: Liberal arts 45%, education 35%, business 15%. Postgraduate studies: 40% of graduates of 4-year programs enter graduate or professional programs. Student activities: Student government, student newspaper, magazine, yearbook, radio, religious organizations, drama, West Virginia Student Public Interest Research Group, Students for Black Interests, social service organizations (PEP–tutoring and community service), fraternities, sororities. Athletics: Archery-M, badminton, baseball-M, basketball, bowling, cross-country-M, Euro-institutions, Washington Semester. Programs for students from minorities or low-income families: Special counselor, tutoring, reduced course load. Tests used for counseling, placement, or credit: Placement, credit, or both will generally be given for grades of 3 and higher in Advanced Placement Examinations. Credit will sometimes be given on basis of CLEP Subject Examinations. Graduate programs: Education. Additional information: Numerous off-campus study and work opportunities available after first year.

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 676 men applied, 522 were accepted; 748 women applied, 669 were accepted. Admissions requirements: ACT by February of senior year or SAT by January of senior year. Early-decision applicants should take the ACT by October of senior year or the SAT by November of senior year. Single Application Method applicants (those who submit a single application for institutions in the Associated Colleges of the Midwest) must take the SAT by December of senior year. High school English 4 units, social studies 2, foreign language 3, mathematics 3, laboratory science 2. No absolute secondary school course requirements. However, preference is given to applicants who have completed the units indicated above. Interview recommended. Basis for selection: Subjects taken and grades earned in those subjects most important, closely followed by what the student has to say about himself in his application (his educational goals, and so forth). Counselor's and teacher's recommendations, test scores, school and community service, and activities also important. Middle 50% of applicants accepted for admission had SAT-verbal scores between 540 and 630 and SAT-mathematical scores between 535 and 630. Application fee: $15, may be waived for applicants from very low-income families. Application procedures: Closing date for applications March 1 (November 15 for early decision, January 15 for Single Application Method), applicants notified of decisions February to March (December 15 for early decision, early February for Single Application Method), accepted applicants must reply by April 1 or May 1 (January 2 for early decision). Transfer applicants: About 125 apply annually, and 75 are accepted. Apply by May 1 for fall term. Transfer applications are welcomed. No credit given for courses where grade is below C because Beloit grading system has no grades below C. Additional information: Well-qualified and mature students may be admitted after junior year of high school. Delayed admission program is available for students who wish to stay out of school a year between high school and college.

STUDENT LIFE. Freshman class: 275 men, 275 women. 10% from Wisconsin, 85% live on campus, 2% commute, 4% from minority backgrounds. Middle 50% of enrolled freshmen have SAT-verbal scores between 535 and 625 and SAT-mathematical scores between 525 and 625. Programs undergraduates choose: Liberal arts 100%. Postgraduate studies: 60% of graduates enter graduate or professional programs. Student activities: Student government (full voting power for 12 students on all academic matters along with all faculty on legislative body), student newspaper, magazine, yearbook, radio, drama, symphony orchestra, political organizations, ethnic organizations (Black student group), social service organizations (volunteer tutoring service on campus, others in community), fraternities (4 national, about 15-20% belong), sororities (1 national and 2 local, about 10-15% belong). Athletics: Archery-W, badminton-W, basketball, bowling-M, cross-country-M, field hockey-W, football-M, golf, soccer-M, softball, swimming and diving, table tennis, tennis, track and field-M, trampoline-W, volleyball, wrestling-M. Student services: Counseling, health services, student employment service for undergraduates, placement service for graduates and alumni. Regulations: Students may operate motor-driven vehicles (unless specifically disqualified) after first 2 terms of first year. Freshmen required to live in college dormitories. Additional information: Several special-interest residences including French House, Spanish House, International House, Music House, and Ecology House.

ANNUAL EXPENSES. Tuition and fees: $1,000-3,300 (depending on family income). Room and board: $1,020. Other expenses: $450.

FINANCIAL AID. Aid offered: Grants, loans, jobs. NDSL, EOG, CWSP. 377 accepted freshman applicants were judged to have need, 377 of these were offered aid, 377 of these were offered the full amounts they were estimated to need. Basis for selection: With Beloit's graduated tuition program (comprehensive fee ranging from $2,020 to $4,320 per year, depending on family income), fewer students will need additional financial aid from the college. However, additional financial aid in the form of grants, loans, and jobs is available to all students qualified for admission. Application procedures: Closing date for applications February 15, applicants notified of decisions as soon as possible after admission is approved and PCS received, recipients of aid offers must reply by April 1 or May 1. McGill University, Montreal, Quebec, Canada

Three-year (post-collegial program) private nonsectarian university with public support for men and women. Undergraduates: 6,734 men, 4,794 women. Graduates: 2,261 men, 967 women. Calendar: 2 terms, September-December, January-May, summer session. Location: Metropolitan area of a large city. Special features: Founded in 1821. Libraries contain over 2,000,000 items and receive over 18,000 serial titles. Language of institution is English but students may write their examinations in French. A new level of education (collegial) has been introduced in the province of Quebec between the completion of high school studies and the commencement of university work, and all Quebec high school graduates must follow this collegial course successfully for 2 years before entering a Quebec university where the course of study will be 3 years. English-language universities in the province of Quebec have been offering college-equivalent programs since 1969 until a sufficient number of English colleges, popularly known as CEGEPS (after the initials of the French name, Collège d'Enseignement Général et Professionnel) could be established to serve English-speaking high school graduates. Four English-language CEGEPS have now been established, and 1972-73 was to be the last session in which McGill would admit students to the first year of the college-equivalent program; 1973-74 will be the final session for admission to the second year of the college-equivalent program. Students from the United States who have graduated from high school and have taken Advanced Placement examinations will be considered for admission to the first year of the 3-year university program but may be required to accumulate additional credits above the normal requirement, depending on their records.

CURRICULUM. Undergraduate degrees offered: Bachelor. Fields of study: Curriculums in the 3-year program include agriculture (agriculture economics, agronomy–field crops, animal science, biological sciences, botanical sciences, fish and game–wildlife management, food science, horticulture, plant science, renewable resources development, soil science), architecture (city planning, urban development), art (art history), biological sciences (anatomical sciences, bacteriology, biochemistry, biology, marine biology, microbiology and immunology, physiology), business and commerce (accounting), Catholic studies, communications (communications, film), computer science and systems analysis (computer science), education (art, child development and nursery, counselor education, educational research, elementary, general, home economics, music, physical, secondary, social foundations of education, vocational trade and industrial), educational administration, engineering (agricultural, chemical, civil engineering and applied, electrical, mechanical, metallurgical, mining engineering and applied geophysics), English and literature (creative writing, English, literature), ethnic studies (African studies, Canadian studies, French Canada studies, Jewish studies, North American studies, Spanish-American), foreign languages (Classical languages, Eastern languages, French, German, Italian, linguistics, Russian, Spanish), geography, health and medical professions (occupational therapy, physical therapy), history and cultures (American, ancient, area and regional, European, medieval studies), home economics (clothing and textiles, family relations, food and nutrition, food science, institution management), mathematics (statistics), music (composition and theory, instrumental music, music history, voice), philosophy and religion (philosophy, religious studies), physical sciences (chemistry, crystallography, earth science, geology, meteorology, oceanography, physical sciences, physics), psychology (child, experimental, general, social), social sciences (anthropology, economics, industrial relations, political science, social work, sociology), theater arts (drama, theater arts). Special programs: Honors program, independent study (some modular courses), study abroad (penultimate year in German only at a European university). Academic regulations: In the Faculty of Arts and the Faculty of Science a student enters in satisfactory standing and remains in this standing unless his grade-point average for any year drops below 2.0. Graduate programs: Agriculture, architecture, art history, biological sciences, business and commerce, city planning, computer science and systems analysis, education, engineering, English, foreign language and literature, geography, health professions, law, library science, mathematics, philosophy, physical sciences, psychology, religion, social sciences.

ADMISSIONS. Applications in 1971: 3,977 men applied, 2,296 were accepted; 3,422 women applied, 2,314 were accepted. Admissions requirements: SAT by January, senior year. An English ACH plus 2 others related to program student wishes to enter. SAT and ACH are required of applicants from the United States who are applying on the basis of their work through the senior year of high school. Total of 16 high school units including 4 in English. Requirements vary according to the program for which the applicant is applying. Basis for selection: Academic record including grades for first semester of senior year, SAT and ACH scores, principal's report. Above average performance required. Application fee: $10. Application procedures: Closing date for applications March 1, applicants notified of decisions between April and July, as file becomes complete. Transfer applicants: Transfer students are welcomed. Credit is granted for previous work whenever possible. Above average performance required.

STUDENT LIFE. Freshman class: Postsecondary school collegial level 2,000 men and women, new first-year university level 2,500. 82% from the province, 15% live on campus. Student activities: Student government, student newspaper, yearbook, radio, religious organizations (Anglican, Roman Catholic, Student Christian Movement, Jewish, Bahai), drama, opera, dance, marching band, concert band, annual musical revue, political organizations, ethnic organizations (Chinese, Greek, international, Intertribal Council of Native Students, Malaysian–Singapore, Pakistan, Polish, Russian, Ukrainian), fraternities, sororities. Athletics: Badminton, basketball, bowling-W, broomball-M, curling-W, fencing-W, field hockey, figure skating-W, football-M, golf-M, ice hockey, rugby-M, sailing-M, skiing-W, soccer-W, squash, swimming and diving, synchronized swimming-W, table tennis-M, tennis-M, track and field-W, volleyball-W, water polo-M. Student services: Counseling, health services, student employment service for undergraduates, placement service for graduates and alumni.

The College Handbook

A complete guide to America's colleges and universities compiled especially for students from information supplied by the colleges themselves.

Special features of the all-new 1972 edition, bound in two parts for convenient handling and efficient use:

Part 1: Descriptions of the colleges

- descriptions of more than 2,000 two-year and four-year colleges, with information about their curriculums, admissions requirements and procedures, student life, costs, and financial aid.
- advice on how to use every feature of this Handbook in exploring colleges, applying for admission, applying for financial aid, and deciding where to go.

Part 2: Tables and maps

- tables showing the admissions test scores and high school standings of applicants and freshmen at hundreds of individual colleges.
- master list of 2,700 undergraduate colleges with basic information about each one—whether it is a two-year or four-year college, whether it is for men or women or both, whether it is public or private, whether or not it is accredited by one of the regional accrediting associations, and what its enrollment is.
- maps of the 50 states and Puerto Rico pinpointing the locations of the 2,700 colleges.

What students wrote about the last edition:

"Easy to find information and easy to understand." Missouri

"I would have been lost without it." Pennsylvania

"It gave me many ideas on colleges I had not even considered." Massachusetts

"Very useful, particularly when you are very uncertain." California

"First book I run to when I have a question." Washington

"Well thought out. It was my sole source of information." Tennessee

"Very well organized and provides much needed information about colleges all over the United States." Texas

"Just what a person needs who isn't sure where he wants to go to college." Ohio

The College Entrance Examination Board is a nonprofit membership organization that provides tests and other educational services for students, schools, and colleges. The membership is composed of more than 1,600 colleges, schools, school systems, and education associations. Representatives of the members serve on committees that consider the Board's programs and participate in the determination of its policies and activities.

Introduction to Part 2

This volume of The College Handbook complements Part 1, which contains the individual descriptions of the colleges. Part 2 contains important additional information about many of the colleges described in Part 1, and it also contains some information about the rest of the undergraduate colleges in this country.

The first section presents tables supplied by the colleges, showing the admissions test scores and high school class ranks or grade averages of their applicants for admission and their enrolled freshmen. Many colleges have also given tables that you can use to estimate what your chances would be of completing their freshman programs with a grade-point average of C or better or with one of B or better.

The next section of this volume contains a series of 51 maps—one for each state and one for Puerto Rico—showing the cities and towns where colleges are located.

The third section consists of a master list of approximately 2,700 two-year and four-year colleges in the United States with undergraduate programs. The list shows which colleges have individual descriptions in Part 1 and which ones are members of the College Entrance Examination Board, the association that publishes this book. It also gives certain basic facts about each of the 2,700 colleges and tells where to find them on their respective state maps.

Frequently you will find it desirable to use Part 1 and Part 2 together, referring back and forth between an individual college's verbal description and its tables of test scores and school class ranks, or between the descriptions and the maps or master list. Having The College Handbook bound in two volumes makes this easy to do. Because each volume is most useful when supplemented by the other one, you will want to be careful to keep them together.

How to use the college tables

Certain kinds of information about a college can be given more clearly and concisely in numerical tables than in words. More than 800 colleges with verbal descriptions in Part 1 have also supplied data for the tables that appear in the following pages. Like the verbal descriptions, the tables are arranged in an alphabetic sequence of the state names, and within each state, of the college names. The index at the back of this volume can help you find a particular college's tables, if there are any.

The tables deal with two general subjects. Some describe the colleges' applicants for admission in 1970 or 1971 and those who were accepted for admission. Studied in conjunction with the section on "Admissions" in the college descriptions in Part 1, these tables can help you weigh your chances of being accepted at various colleges.

Other tables describe enrolled freshmen and enable you to compare your own academic qualifications with those of students who entered the various colleges in 1970 or 1971. One kind of table enables you to estimate your chances in 100 of obtaining a grade-point average of at least C or one of at least B in your freshman year. Studied in conjunction with the sections on "Curriculum" and "Student life" in the college descriptions in Part 1, these tables can help you to consider the kind of academic challenge you might experience at various colleges.

General rules for understanding the tables

Read the table titles and headings carefully. Tables that look alike may give quite different kinds of information, so you need to pay close attention to every word in their titles and headings. For example, the students described in a table may be men, women, or both. They may be from only public schools, only private schools, or all schools. They may be a college's whole applicant group or they may be only those who applied for admission to a particular curriculum, such as engineering.

If a college has tables for different groups of applicants and enrolled freshmen, look for the table title and headings that fit you best for the most realistic comparison of your own academic qualifications with those of other students.

Remember that a table can be misleading to you if you are different in some significant way from the group the table is about. For example, many colleges now recruit students from racial minorities, from low-income families, and from schools that have few graduates entering college. Many colleges also provide tutoring and other assistance to such students if they need it. If you are such a student, comparing your test scores and other qualifications with the data in tables about a college's total group of applicants or enrolled freshmen can give you very incorrect estimates of both your chances of admission and your chances of succeeding in your college work.

Each major type of table included in this College Handbook is illustrated in these pages with any explanation necessary to understand it.

Tables about applicants for admission

The first tables tell about students who applied for admission to a college and those whom the college accepted.

Table 1. School class rank of applicants for admission

Class rank		Men	Women
Top 10th	Applied	129	87
	Accepted	47	32
Second 10th	Applied	168	152
	Accepted	61	50
Second 5th	Applied	172	169
	Accepted	83	82
Third 5th	Applied	85	121
	Accepted	30	62
Fourth 5th	Applied	18	26
	Accepted	12	18
Bottom 5th	Applied	9	21
	Accepted	2	8

If you know your class rank, or can estimate whether you stand in the top tenth, the second tenth, or one of the fifths below that, you can read in Table 1 the number of students of your sex and class rank who applied for admission and the number who were accepted by the college. For example, a boy in the fourth (next to the lowest) one-fifth of his class can see that this college received applications from 18 men of similar class rank and accepted 12 of them. From this he can infer that, other factors being equal, he has about 2 chances in 3 of being accepted for admission by this college.

It is important to realize that Table 1 reports class ranks from all schools as if such ranks were comparable in meaning from one school to another, even though it is well known that there are large differences among schools. That is, it takes a better quality of work to attain a high standing in some schools than it does in others. This kind of difference from school to school is one of the principal reasons that colleges require their applicants to take some specified admissions test or tests. The tests provide a common measure that helps to balance out the inequities that would result from using only school records representing unequal standards. For this reason, the tables based on school class ranks, like Table 1, or those based on grade averages, like Table 2, should usually be read in conjunction with a similar table based on admissions test scores. The two kinds of tables, taken together, give a better picture of the college than does either one alone.

Table 2. School grade average of applicants for admission

Grade average		Men	Women
3.50-4.00	Applied	59	85
	Accepted	59	85
3.00-3.49	Applied	57	79
	Accepted	53	73
2.50-2.99	Applied	51	49
	Accepted	46	43
2.00-2.49	Applied	50	29
	Accepted	44	21
1.50-1.99	Applied	27	12
	Accepted	12	2
Below 1.50	Applied	10	2

Some colleges use the average of an applicant's school marks, rather than his class rank, to summarize his academic achievement in high school. These colleges may have supplied a table like Table 2 to describe the grade averages of their applicants.

In most of these tables, grade averages are based on a scale in which A = 4.00, B = 3.00, C = 2.00, D = 1.00, and F = 0. If your school reports final marks as letters, you can determine your grade average by converting all your final marks, beginning with grade 9, to these numerical values, adding them, and dividing by the number of marks. If you are a junior, use your most recent marks in your subjects this year or estimate what your final marks will be. If your school reports final marks in some other form, ask your counselor how to convert your marks to this scale.

After you have computed your own grade average, you can read in Table 2 how many students with a similar average applied for admission and how many the college accepted. For example, a girl whose grade average is 2.60 can see that this college got applications from 49 women with similar averages (2.50-2.99) and accepted 43 of them.

If you have taken the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT), you can read in a college's table like Table 3 the number of applications it received from students with scores like yours and the number it accepted. PSAT/NMSQT scores are converted to the SAT score scale by adding a zero as a third digit. For example, a PSAT/NMSQT score of 44 is equivalent to an SAT score of 440.

A girl with a PSAT/NMSQT-verbal score (PSAT/NMSQT-V) of 44 or an SAT-verbal score (SAT-V) of 440 can see in Table 3 that this college received applications for admission from 328 women with similar SAT-V scores (400-490) and accepted 265 of them. From this she can infer that, other factors being equal, her chances of admission are about 80%. If the same girl's PSAT/NMSQT-mathematical score (PSAT/NMSQT-M) is 36, equivalent to an SAT-mathematical score (SAT-M) of 360, she can read in Table 3 that the college had applications from 189 women with similar scores and accepted 106, or 56%, of them. Now she has two different indications of her chances of admission, in addition to any that she may have found in a table on class ranks or grade averages.

Usually these test scores and class rank or grade average give fairly similar forecasts of admission, because high standing on one tends to go with high standing on the others. When they are different, however, as they may be if for example you have a high verbal score and a low mathematical score, you will need to know more about what the college considers important in its admissions decisions, and you may find clues to this in its description in Part 1.

Colleges that use scores from the College Board Achievement Tests may give their applicants' scores on these tests in tables like Table 4 and Table 5. If a student has taken the test or tests named in the table title, he can compare his score or scores with those of the college's applicants for admission. Table 4 shows the scores of a college's applicants on a single Achievement Test—in this case, English Composition. Some colleges figure the average of an applicant's Achievement Test scores on whatever tests he took, and Table 5 shows the averages of Achievement Tests scores obtained by a college's applicants.

Some colleges require or recommend the tests of the American College Testing Program (ACT) and have given the composite scores of their applicants for admission, as in Table 6. If you have taken these tests, you can read in such a table the number of students with composite scores like yours who applied for admission to the college and the number of them who were accepted.

The last table that deals with applicants for admission is based on a number called the "academic composite." This number is also the basis for tables on enrolled freshmen. In order to interpret any of these tables, you must first compute your own academic composite according to a formula that is given for a particular table. The instructions for doing so are found beginning on page viii.

An academic composite is a number in which your SAT-V and SAT-M scores or your PSAT/NMSQT-V and PSAT/NMSQT-M scores are combined with your school grade average (A) or your school class rank (R) according to a formula for a particular college. This formula assigns weights to each of the two test scores and the rank or average in order to produce the combination that has been found to be best for predicting students' academic performance in that college. For example, at some colleges high school grades are better predictors of college grades than the verbal or mathematical test scores are and therefore receive more weight than the test scores in the academic composite formulas for these colleges. At other colleges the SAT-V or PSAT/NMSQT-V scores may be better predictors than either the mathematical scores or high school class ranks or grade averages, and the academic composite formulas for these colleges give more weight to the verbal scores. The formula for the academic composite may vary not only from college to college but also from one program to another in the same college or university. Even in a single program the formula for men may be different from the formula for women. For this reason, each table that is based on academic composites gives, under its title, the particular formula for you to use in figuring your own composite for reading that table.

When you have computed your own academic composite, using the formula under the table title and following the instructions on pages viii-x, you can compare yourself with recent applicants for admission and with those accepted by the college. For example, using the formula at the top of Table 7, a boy finds that his academic composite is 438 and can read in the table that this college received applications for admission from 491 men with academic composites similar to his own (400-449) and accepted 420 of them. Although it is not necessarily true that the college computes and uses the academic composites of its applicants in deciding which ones to accept, it is reasonable to infer from this table that this college would find this boy well qualified for admission academically.

Some of the tables on applicants for admission describe only those who were accepted by the college, as the table titles indicate. These tables, by themselves, tell you nothing about your chances of admission, because you can not tell from them whether a college accepted a large or small proportion of its applicants with scores, grade averages, class ranks, or academic composites similar to your own. If you read them along with the section on admissions in the colleges' descriptions in Part 1, though, you may get additional useful information about their admissions practices and your own chances of being accepted.

Tables about enrolled freshmen

There are several kinds of tables that colleges supplied to tell you about the abilities and previous scholastic achievement of their freshman classes. Such information is a clue to the academic environment at a college and helps you to consider this aspect of the experience you might have if you went there. You have probably had classes in high school that were relatively easy for you—classes where you seemed to have more ability than many of the other students. You may also have had classes that were harder for you than for many other students. From such experience you may know how you react to situations where you stand relatively high or relatively low. To some students it makes little difference. Others become discouraged and lose confidence in themselves under continuous competition from more able students. Still others are stimulated by competition and do their best work under such conditions. The tables about colleges' enrolled freshmen, when studied with the sections on "Curriculum" and "Student life" in their descriptions in Part 1, may help you to identify colleges where you would find the academic environment both beneficial and comfortable.

300-399	6	1–

Some colleges have provided one or more "expectancy tables" like Table 8 above. A student who has computed the academic composite indicated under the table title, following the instructions on pages viii-x, can determine from this table how likely he is to obtain a freshman grade average of C or above, or one of B or above, at this college. This table is produced from the records of recent freshmen at the college. It is useful for predicting the performance of future students if, as is usually true at least for short periods like two or three years, the college's curriculum and grading practices stay about the same.

It is important to note that the table does not give you a single "predicted grade." Every student has at least some chance, however small, of obtaining almost any grade average, so predictions of grade averages should never be expressed as certainties. However, when the relationship of test scores and school grades to grades in a particular college is known, it is possible to predict, for example, that among 100 students with a certain academic composite, approximately 83 will obtain grade averages of at least C and 11 will obtain averages of at least B. If a student has the same academic composite, there is no certain way of knowing into which of these categories he would fall if he attended that college, although he may have other information about himself that gives him reason to believe he would be among the 11 who obtain averages of B or above. If he lacks the additional information, he can reasonably conclude that he is likely to attain any average that a large proportion of other students with comparable qualifications have attained. Similarly, an average attained by a small proportion of students with qualifications similar to his own is proportionately less likely to be attained by him.

For example, a boy whose academic composite, by the formula 15(A) + 1(V) + 4(M) given with Table 8, is 540 can read in the table that there are about 55 chances in 100 of his getting an average of C or above as a freshman at this college, and there are only 2 chances in 100 that his average will be a B or above. He might also read in the table the lines above and below the line for his own academic composite. For example, if his academic composite were only 60 points higher, as it would be if his grade average were, say, a B– instead of a C+, or if his SAT-M were 500 instead of 350, he would read that he had 83 chances in 100 of completing the freshman year with an average of C or above. Similarly, if his academic composite were 40 points lower, as it might be if he were in a different school where his grade average was only C instead of C+, the table would indicate that his chances of getting a C average in college were only 24 in 100. He might reasonably revise his estimated chances of getting a C average upward or downward from what the table gives for men with his academic composite if he has reason to believe that his school grade average or his test scores or both misrepresent his true ability to do college work, as they might, for example, if they had been depressed by poor health or inflated by unusually easy grading standards in his school.

Second 5th	95	186
Third 5th	104	102
Fourth 5th	41	39
Bottom 5th	19	3

Other tables enable you to compare yourself with the students in recent freshman classes at individual colleges. Table 9 gives the school class ranks of men and women at one college, expressed as standings in fifths of the group, with the highest fifth divided into the highest tenth and the second tenth. If you know or can estimate your own standing in your school class, you can determine from this table how many freshmen at this college had a class rank similar to your own and how many, if any, ranked higher and lower. For example, a girl in the third one-fifth of her class can read in this table that 102 women in this college's freshman class ranked in the third fifth of their school classes, 316 ranked higher, and 42 ranked lower. She may also be interested in the comparable information about the men in the college's freshman class, especially if she is considering a curriculum in which a large proportion of men students enroll.

You should exercise the same care in reading this kind of table of class ranks as in reading the class rank tables on applicants for admission.

Some colleges have provided tables like Table 10 showing the school grade averages of their enrolled freshmen. You can figure your own comparable grade average and read in this kind of table the number of freshmen at the college with school grade averages similar to your own and the numbers, if any, with higher averages and lower averages.

In most of these tables, as with those describing applicants for admission, grade averages are based on a scale in which A = 4.00, B = 3.00, C = 2.00, D = 1.00, and F = 0.

If you know your SAT or PSAT/NMSQT scores, you can compare yourself with enrolled freshmen at colleges that have provided a table like Table 11. For example, a boy whose PSAT/NMSQT-V score is 51 converts this to the equivalent score on the SAT scale, 510, and can read in this table that the college enrolled 120 men with SAT-V scores in the range 500-590 and 89 men with higher SAT-V scores and 207 with lower scores.

Colleges have also provided tables like Table 12 showing enrolled freshmen's scores on College Board Achievement Tests and, in some cases, on the average of all Achievement Test scores obtained by each student. These tables enable you to compare yourself with some or all of a college's freshmen on yet another indicator of academic ability and accomplishment.

If you have taken the tests of the American College Testing Program, you can compare yourself with enrolled freshmen at colleges that supplied tables like Table 13. For example, a girl whose ACT composite score is 21 can read in this table that there were 184 women in the freshman class at this college with similar scores (19-24), 33 with scores above that range, and 198 with scores in lower ranges.

Some colleges have provided the table that describes enrolled freshmen in terms of an appropriate academic composite. An example of this is Table 14. You can compare yourself with freshmen at a college by using the formula at the top of the table and following the directions on pages viii-x to compute your own academic composite for the college and then reading in the table how many freshmen there have composites similar to yours and how many, if any, have higher and lower composites. The special advantage of this kind of table is that it combines your test scores and school rank or grade average in the way that gives the best prediction of your freshman grade average. Therefore, your standing in this table is the best prediction that you can make from these factors of where you would stand in a class at this college at the end of your freshman year.

Computing your academic composites

In every table that is based on an academic composite there is a formula printed below its title – for example, 10(R) + 3(V) + 1(M). You can compute your own academic composites for all the formulas found in the Handbook if you know four important numbers: 1. your high school grade average (A); 2. your converted rank (R) in your high school class; 3. your verbal score (V) on the SAT or the PSAT/NMSQT; 4. your mathematical score (M) on the SAT or the PSAT/NMSQT. You may want to record each of these four numbers here in your Handbook, where you can easily find and use them, as needed, in computing any academic composite.

Grade average (A). This is the average of all your final grades to date, beginning with grade 9, and of your most recent grades in the subjects you are now taking. Grades that are not already expressed as letters on the scale A, B, C, D, and F must first be converted to the letter scale. These letter grades are then given the following numerical values: A = 40; B = 30; C = 20; D = 10; and F = 0. (This is the same scale as that given for computing your average in order to compare it with the averages of applicants and enrolled freshmen at various colleges, except that the decimal is placed differently.) For this purpose, it is generally satisfactory to treat all grades equally, including those in subjects that you studied for less than a year, those in "nonacademic" subjects, and those in accelerated or enriched courses, even though colleges frequently take such differences into account when they evaluate applicants' school records.

You compute your grade average by adding the numerical values of all your grades and dividing this sum by the number of grades included.

The blank form below provides a simplified procedure for computing your average.

Number of A's:	____ × 40 =	____
B's:	____ × 30 =	____
C's:	____ × 20 =	____
D's:	____ × 10 =	____

Total number of marks: ____. Total value: ____.

Divide the "Total number of marks" into the "Total value," carry out the division to one decimal place, and then round off to the nearest whole number. This number, which will be between 0 and 40 if you have computed it correctly, is your grade average (A). Write it in this space.....A = __

Converted rank (R). You can compute your converted rank (R) if you know or can estimate your standing in your school class, expressed in any of these three ways:

1. If your standing is (a)__th from the top in a class of (b)__ students, you first find your "proportional standing" by dividing (b) into (a). Carry this division to three decimal places and then round it off to two places. In Table A on page x find your proportional standing in the first column, read your corresponding converted rank (R) in the right-hand column, and write it in this space.....R=__ or 2. If you rank at the __th percentile (meaning that you rank higher than that percentage of your class), refer directly to Table A, find your "percentile rank" in the second column, read your corresponding converted rank (R) in the right-hand column, and write it in this space.....R=__ or 3. If you rank in a certain fraction of your class—such as the highest quarter, the second one-fifth, or the sixth one-tenth—refer directly to Table A, find the appropriate fraction in one of the four columns that deal with "rank," read the corresponding converted rank (R) in the right-hand column, and write it in this space.....R=__

Verbal score (V). If you have taken the SAT, drop the final zero (0) from your score in order to express it in two digits. For example, a score of 370 is written as 37. If you have taken the PSAT/NMSQT, copy your two-digit verbal score just as it was reported to you. If you have taken both tests or have taken one of them more than once, use the average of your verbal scores (in two digits), or use the one score that you consider the best or truest indication of your ability. Write your verbal score in this space.....V=__

Mathematical score (M). Follow the same procedure as for determining your verbal score. Both scores should be taken from the same test or combination of tests. Write your mathematical score in this space.....M=__

■ Substitute the values of A, R, V, and M that you have written above, wherever they appear in a formula for an academic composite.

Here are examples of how two students computed academic composites.

Example 1. David took the PSAT/NMSQT. His verbal score (V) was 36, and his mathematical score (M) was 42.

His final marks in the freshman and sophomore years and his latest marks in the current (junior) year are summarized and averaged as follows:

Number of A's:	1 × 40 =	40
B's:	3 × 30 =	90
C's:	9 × 20 =	180
F's:	2 × 0 =	0

Total number of marks: 15. Total value: 310.

$$15\overline{)310.0} = 20.6$$

30

100

Rounded off to the nearest whole number, David's average (A) is 21.

In the tables for Alma College (Michigan) David finds the following formula: Academic composite = 15(A) + 4(V) + 1(M). To find the value of his academic composite based on this formula, he substitutes his own values for A, V, and M as follows:

$$\begin{aligned}\text{Academic composite} &= 15(21) + 4(36) + 1(42)\\ &= 315 + 144 + 42\\ &= 501\end{aligned}$$

David uses this academic composite value, 501, in reading Alma College's tables. He may use it, in fact, to read any tables based on an academic composite with the formula 15(A) + 4(V) + 1(M). He should not use it to read a table based on an academic composite with any other formula.

Example 2. Fran took the SAT. Her verbal score was 520, which, expressed in two digits, gives her a (V) of 52. Her mathematical score was 480, which equals an (M) of 48.

Fran has learned from her counselor that her class rank, based on the first 3½ years of high school, is 185th from the top in a class of 590 students. She divides 590 into 185 to determine her "proportional standing":

$$590\overline{)185.000} = .313$$

800

590

Rounded off to two decimal places, her proportional standing is .31, and Table A shows that the corresponding value of converted rank (R) is 54.

In a table about women at North Central College (Illinois) Fran finds the following formula: Academic composite = 10(R) + 1(V) + 3(M). She substitutes her own values of R, V, and M as follows:

Academic composite = 10(54) + 1(52) + 3(48)
= 540 + 52 + 144
= 736

Fran uses the academic composite value 736 in reading this and any other tables based on academic composites with the same formula.

State maps showing locations of colleges

On the following pages, in alphabetic order, are maps of the fifty states and Puerto Rico. (The District of Columbia is shown on the map of Maryland.) Each map shows the cities and towns where there are colleges with undergraduate programs—the colleges that are named in the master list in the next section of this book, which begins on page 473.

To find the location of a college, look for its name in the master list. To the right of the college's name is the name of its city or town. On the same line, in the column headed "Location on map," the city or town's position on the appropriate state map is designated by two coordinates—a letter and a number. Turn to the state map and find the square for those coordinates, and find the college's city or town in that square.

The locations of some colleges are not indicated on the master list or shown on the maps. Such colleges became eligible for listing in the Handbook or moved to new locations after the maps were completed.

Institutions of higher education with undergraduate programs

This is a list of institutions with undergraduate college-level programs, identified in the fall of 1971 by the United States Office of Education for inclusion in its 1971-72 edition of Education Directory: Higher Education. Those listed in italics did not supply information for individual descriptions in Part 1 of this edition of The College Handbook, and the information about them that is given here was taken from the latest published reports of the Office of Education. The others, listed in roman type, do have individual descriptions in Part 1 and, except as noted below, supplied the information about themselves that is given here as well as in Part 1.

You may obtain information about any college listed here by writing to its office of admissions. Cards for this purpose are bound into the Handbook.

Key to list

θ . . . . . college is a member of the College Board, which publishes this Handbook

Location on map . . . the letter and number in this column are coordinates of the section of the state map in which the city or town is located. Coordinates are missing for some colleges. Such qualified for inclusion on this list or moved to new locations after the maps were completed.

2 . . . . . 2-year college

4 . . . . . 4-year college

C . . . . . coeducational

M . . . . . men only

W . . . . . women only

pub. . . . . publicly supported prv . . . . . privately supported

A . . . . . accredited by the regional association of schools and colleges in its region, according to information that the college supplied to the Office of Education in the summer of 1971

1,930 etc. . . undergraduate enrollment, including both full-time and part-time students, in 1970 or 1971

The College Handbook

A complete guide to America's colleges and universities compiled especially for students from information supplied by the colleges themselves.

Special features of the all-new 1972 edition, bound in two parts for convenient handling and efficient use:

Part 1: Descriptions of the colleges

- descriptions of more than 2,000 two-year and four-year colleges, with information about their curriculums, admissions requirements and procedures, student life, costs, and financial aid.
- advice on how to use every feature of this Handbook in exploring colleges, applying for admission, applying for financial aid, and deciding where to go.

Part 2: Tables and maps

- tables showing the admissions test scores and high school standings of applicants and freshmen at hundreds of individual colleges.
- master list of 2,700 undergraduate colleges with basic information about each one—whether it is a two-year or four-year college, whether it is for men or women or both, whether it is public or private, whether or not it is accredited by one of the regional accrediting associations, and what its enrollment is.
- maps of the 50 states and Puerto Rico pinpointing the locations of the 2,700 colleges.

What students wrote about the last edition:

"Easy to find information and easy to understand." Missouri

"I would have been lost without it." Pennsylvania

"It gave me many ideas on colleges I had not even considered." Massachusetts

"Very useful, particularly when you are very uncertain." California

"First book I run to when I have a question." Washington

"Well thought out. It was my sole source of information." Tennessee

"Very well organized and provides much needed information about colleges all over the United States." Texas

"Just what a person needs who isn't sure where he wants to go to college." Ohio
